From Ruthi:

Greetings from the SRC! Well, the semester started off with a bang with nearly every English class participating in the "Research 101" workshops! Students at all levels learned the ins and outs of research, including how to evaluate Internet content, finding trusted sources, varying media, and how to use our online research subscriptions. My hope is that students will now be better prepared to do research across the curriculum, and will utilize the tools that we provide for them. As a result of the workshops, I am getting many more students asking for help with the Global Issues and eBook databases, as well as with print media and Internet sources. I hope that you will be able to see better research papers!

Please note that I will be in Chicago this Friday through Monday for IB training. I look forward to learning how to convert our space into a real International learning place!

Black History Month must be more than just a month of remembrance; it should be a tribute to our history and reminder of the work that lies in the months and years ahead.

Resource Center Web Page

If you haven't visited the new Resource Center web page on our NDA page, please check it out! I have moved all of the links to our online resources over to the new page next to the words "Student Resources." Links include Global Issues, Ebooks, InfOhio and a link to the Toledo-Lucas County Public Library.
